How would you describe your overall internship experience during your final year of faculty?

I am extremely grateful for the opportunity to complete my internship in this dynamic environment, as it was a truly enlightening experience. I had the chance to familiarize myself in depth with clinical studies, which greatly contributed to my professional development. The team I worked with showed exceptional understanding and support, not only for my work tasks but also for my academic obligations. Their openness and willingness to help create a wonderful working atmosphere, and I would warmly recommend this internship to anyone looking to enter this field!

What were your main responsibilities during your internship, and how did they align with your expectations?

During my time as a Feasibility Patient Recruitment and Retention Specialist/Intern, my primary responsibilities included creating simulations and writing feasibility reports. These tasks allowed me to engage more deeply in the process and understand all aspects of clinical studies. I'm glad I had the opportunity to immerse myself in this type of analytical work, as it rounded out my previous experiences that included site searches and communication with various sites. This experience provided me with insights into the practical aspects of the industry and enabled me to develop my analytical skills.

How did the internship help you develop new skills, both professionally and personally?

Throughout my internship, I acquired many new skills that enriched me both professionally and personally. I learned how to effectively analyze data and draw conclusions, which is crucial for decision-making in clinical studies. Additionally, I developed communication skills that helped me collaborate with various teams and stakeholders involved in the studies. Working in a dynamic environment also taught me to be flexible and adapt to rapid changes, which I consider extremely important in this field.

How did you manage the demands of your internship while keeping up with your final-year studies?

Balancing the demands of my internship with my studies in my final year posed a challenge but, with good organization, I managed to handle it. I prioritized my tasks and worked on developing effective time management techniques, which allowed me to devote time to both academic assignments and work responsibilities. Furthermore, the supportive team I worked with made it easier to align all my obligations and enabled me to focus on achieving the best results in both areas.

What advice would you give to current students who are about to start their internship or who are looking for one?

I would advise future students to be proactive and open to all the opportunities that an internship offers. It's a unique chance to learn and build a professional network. Don't hesitate to ask questions and seek advice from more experienced colleagues; this can significantly contribute to your development. Additionally, I encourage you to focus on skill development and take advantage of every opportunity to learn from your experiences. This approach will help you build a strong foundation for your future career.

If you could go back and change one thing about your internship experience, what would it be?

If I could go back and change one thing about my internship experience, I would love to have dedicated more time to networking with colleagues and industry professionals. I would have enjoyed more interactions and collaborative projects that would allow me to better know people from different areas, further enriching my experience and providing me with new insights into the industry.
